CONSTRUCTIVE CRIT

Encapsulating Architectural evaluation methods and outcomes

The design jury, design critique, or crit is a common teaching and learning strategy within art, design, and architecture education. There are criticisms on the process of crit as being more negative and not comprehending to heighten the learning atmosphere for student anxiety, students' inability to learn from the feedback, power asymmetry between student and faculty or privileging professional acculturation over student learning. Yet it is universally accepted that Design crit is a distinguishing factor of education so, there arises a need to re-look into various methods and techniques of conducting a constructive crit. The program will explore various components of a design crit focusing on the learning objectives and outcomes of the level of the design education, studio brief and expected quality of work from the students, ways to incorporate the jury comments into furthering the design process. The program would conclude with finding ways to device the process of crit as a conducive method of design pedagogy.
