Women Education

is conducting Faculty workshop on in Architecture and Practice

In the last couple of decades, women architects have changed the entire scenario in practice and in the educational field. They have entered the main stream architectural practice and they have carved out a niche for themselves in alternative technology. Younger women architects have been on the forefronts in research and conservation projects plus they have entered the educational field with a huge gusto. Yet if you look minutely at their lives, it has not changed dramatically for them at home, they've just learned to do multiple roles better. This program is geared towards looking at presentations by eminent women architects and learn from their massive struggle. This program will bring to you mind mapping sessions, provocative films on women's issues, and this will motivate women architects in education to bring this awareness into the design studio.
