ABOUT IAPL

The Indian Architectural Plumbing League (IAPL) is a first-of-its-kind academic-industry initiative for architects, jointly organised by the Council of Architecture (COA) and the Indian Plumbing Association (IPA). This 20-hour programme blends classroom and virtual learning with a mandatory site visit, covering plumbing system fundamentals, water supply, drainage, stormwater management, efficiency, rainwater harvesting, wastewater reuse, and plumbing codes—with emphasis on space planning and coordination. Bridging design intent with on-ground execution, IAPL empowers architects to create sustainable, high-performance buildings. Launching as a pilot before scaling across major Indian cities, it offers a joint COA-IPA certification through structured assessment, recognizing excellence in architectural plumbing and water management design.

ABOUT CoA

The Council of Architecture (COA) has been constituted by the Government of India under the provisions of the Architects Act, 1972, enacted by the Parliament of India, which came into force on 1st September, 1972. The Act provides for registration of Architects, standards of education, recognized qualifications and standards of practice to be complied with by the practicing architects. The Council is also maintaining a National Register of Architects.

ABOUT IPA

The Indian Plumbing Association (IPA) is India's apex body for water management and plumbing professionals, dedicated to promoting safe, efficient, and sustainable water practices. For over 33 years, IPA has worked to enhance plumbing and sanitation standards nationwide with support from its 28 chapters across India. The association raises awareness within the building sector about the importance of proper water management for public health and sustainability through conferences, publications, and technical initiatives. With more than 12,500 members—including consultants, architects, developers, manufacturers, and academicians—IPA serves as a collaborative platform. It also leads major initiatives such as Plumbex India, Indian Plumbing Conference, and the Save Water Mission.
